

Abstract:

The invention relates to a nucleic acid sequence encoding a protein kinase A anchor protein, to the use of said nucleic acid sequence in a fusion protein, to a method of determining the interaction of said protein kinase A anchor protein with regulatory subunits of protein kinase A, and to a method of identifying cell-permeable substances.